Chalet Milou, from the original French name of Tintin's dog 'Snowy', is nestled just above the Médran lift station providing the perfect skiers position complete with stunning views and just 100m from the piste.

Being located on Chemin de Clambin means you can ski back to the door after a day skiing and it's just a two minute walk to join the piste above Médran in the morning (unless you choose to utilise the driving service!). The 450m² chalet has been built in a traditional style using reclaimed wood giving it a wonderful rustic feel yet with the benefit of modern amenities.

Chalet Milou has an extensive balcony that runs the length of the property and a hot tub that has been carefully positioned in a completely private position, taking advantage of the stunning views. Access to the hot tub is via a small spa area that could be used as a yoga/treatment room with a steam room and private shower.

The large open plan living area has extensive views over the valley and has a large soft seating area, a dining table for twelve and an office corner. It is a well proportioned room with impressive double height aspect and huge picture windows. In addition, there is a lovely cosy TV mezzanine room above this living area, which is cleverly glassed off to provide a perfect hideaway to watch the TV, perhaps read or listen to music undisturbed. There is a second large sitting room which is ideal for teenagers or children to escape to at the other end of the chalet. This room also benefits from the amazing views and is open to the eaves, which can be reached via the ground floor or by crossing the outdoor terrace.

" We have just had the most amazing week in Chalet Milou and just wanted to thank all the team for a truly exceptional time and experience. Chalet Milou is literally perfect – but our chef and hosts Tom Holly and Jessica made it!! They were all so professional and absolutely brilliant at their jobs and naturally super friendly, warm, welcoming and charming. We were blessed with superb weather which was the icing on the cake of our magical week. A week we will never forget! Thank you all very much!"
